

Florence Davies is a Writing Consultant III Administrator and serves as the outreach and events coordinator for the writing center. Her educational background includes an MFA in Writing & Literature from Stony Brook University and a BA in English from Texas A&M. She coordinates the Aggie Creative Collective, a collaborative program between LAUNCH and the Department of English that assists creative students with the development of creative undergraduate research and theses. She also helps to oversee the writing center's media team and co-manages our social media accounts. Her research interests include multimodal compositions and media projects, code-meshing, and explorations of young adult literature featuring protagonists of color. She is a governing board member of the African American Professional Organization at Texas A&M and has also served as the staff advisor for The Eckleburg Project, TAMU's undergraduate literary journal, for five years. A writer for young adults, Florence has screened fiction for Callaloo Journal, taught creative writing for the non-profit Writers in the Schools (WITS), and judges manuscript contests for other literary journals. She is currently working on her second novel.
